

Medical Acupuncture on Dental and Allergy Meridians: Blue Plate Café and the Acci-Dental Blow Up in Medicine

By Simon Yu, MD

A German medical doctor and acupuncturist, Dr. Reinhold Voll, developed a new meridian system about 60 years ago based on the classical acupuncture meridian system. He mapped out well over 500 acupuncture points, known as Dr. Voll's points.

He described new acupuncture points beyond the classical meridian system known to traditional acupuncturists. The most important of Dr. Voll's new classification of the acupuncture system include the dental/lymph system and allergy meridians, and other extra meridians including connective/fibroid tissue, joints, skin/scars, and cellular degeneration points. These points were not described previously in classical Chinese acupuncture teaching.

With his educational background as a medical doctor, acupuncturist and homeopathic physician, Dr. Voll was able to diagnose and treat some of the most complex, modern chronically ill patients. His technique was known as Electro-acupuncture according to Dr. Voll, or EAV. With modern computer technology, it is called Computerized Electro-Dermal Screening, or CEDS.

The popularity of EAV and CEDS peaked in the 1970's thru 1980's and gradually waned off due to the time-consuming complexity of meridian testing based on homeopathic principles, and crackdowns on some of the outlandish claims of "cures" by medical, dental and non-medical EAV/CEDS practitioners.

The current popular systems are based on an artificial intelligence algorithm which is not based on true meridian assessment. The AI algorithm can predict and prognosticate based on the galvanic currents, age, sex, other proprietary factors derived from blood, urine, saliva, voice analysis, and statistical probability. They claim to predict what kind of medical problems you may have and recommend certain types of treatment plans. This kind of technology is still too young, unknown and I do not recommend using this kind of device for medical treatment when you are seriously sick. Stick with the 5,000 year old disruptive technology called acupuncture and acupuncture meridian assessment.

In my experience, one of the fastest ways to re-balance the disturbed acupuncture meridians is by aggressively using parasite medications (and antifungal meds). The selection of medications is based on acupuncture meridian assessment. However, the dental and allergy meridians described by Dr. Voll were often not affected by parasite medications. They seem separate and independent medical problems. I have addressed Dental-Medical Complex problems in my first book, Accidental Cure, in the chapter called, "Dental Death Trap."

The allergy points are another brilliant discovery by Dr. Voll. I like to call them allergy-immunology points to reflect their true significance. They reflect not only allergy, but the immune system. The allergy-immunology points helps to unmask not only food and air-borne allergies but also hidden toxic metals, environmental toxic chemicals and fungal mycotoxins.

After cleaning out the most common parasites and fungal problems, the next step is to address dental and allergy-immunology related problems. A deep dental jawbone infection (cavitation) and root canals may have multiple sources of infections, including virus, bacteria, fungi, parasites and bio-toxins, but may not show in up in X-rays. We can explore measuring these subtle energy fields using acupuncture meridian assessment (AMA).

Recently, I visited Memphis to pay a tribute to the King of Rock & Roll, Elvis Presley, at Graceland. I went to Beale Street to experience the home of the Blues and birthplace of Rock & Roll. Loud, dynamic, soul searching Blues and Rock & Roll are the opposite polarity of the subtle energy field of meridians.

During the AMA evaluation, you can hear, see and feel the subtle human energy fields, the opposite frequency spectrum. They are not separate but a continuation of the opposite polarity of the intensity and frequency spectrum.

So, why do I mention Blue Plate Café? The Blue Plate Café is known for where you can indulge in the Southern tradition of biscuits and gravy, fried chicken and grits. The Blue Plate Cafe brings together Blues, Soul and Rock & Roll fans. Together is better.

Together, we can ditch your medical doctor/dentist/hospital/pharmacy, forget eating salads, vegan diet and stop worrying about your weight and embrace Southern hospitality if we can get rid of parasites and extract bad teeth. Visit Beale Street and the King. The Blue Plate Café will serve you food in a white plate. Here are some of the Blue Plate Café menu's famous quotes I would like to share with you.
